J. M. Coetzee's first novel, Dusklands (1974), is an agonizing encounter both with colonialism's violence, and with the discursive legacy it leaves to its heirs. After the partial institutionalization of colonial discourse in the literary academy, and after many sober assessments of the political efficacy of post-

Dusklands is Coetzee's first book, two stories that combine to be about 120 pages. Watching Coetzee's early musings puts familiar themes on display: racism, colonialism, the writing of history, strained relationships, etc. I enjoyed the work as an artifact of Coetzee's development as an artist and award-winning author.
