how we think, feel, and act when facing life's situations. Like physical health, mental health is important at every stage of life. Children experience a wide range of feelings every day—most pleasant, some, or a few, worrisome. The Caring for Every Child's Mental Health Campaign, a

"... a curriculum geared toward helping students gain skills in consciously regulating their actions, which in turn leads to increased control and problem solving abilities. Using a cognitive behavior approach, the curriculum's learning activities are designed to help students recognize when they are in different states called "zones," with each of four zones represented by a different color. In the activities, students also learn how to use strategies or tools to stay in a zone or move from one to another. Students explore calming techniques, cognitive strategies, and sensory supports so they will have a toolbox of methods to use to move between zones. To deepen students' understanding of how to self-regulate, the lessons set out to teach students these skills: how to read others' facial expressions and recognize a broader range of emotions, perspective about how others see and react to their behavior, insight into events that trigger their less regulated states, and when and how to use tools and problem solving skills. The curriculum's learning activities are presented in 18 lessons. To reinforce the concepts being taught, each lesson includes probing questions to discuss and instructions for one or more learning activities. Many lessons offer extension activities and ways to adapt the activity for individual explores the creative process, abstract art, friendship, and the universal desire to feel understood.

A board book version of Seuss's popular rhyming story describes each day in terms of a particular color which in turn is associated with specific emotions.

Jesse True is a normal little boy, until one day he starts changing color based on how he feels. Jesse glows different colors based on different feelings. As you follow Jesse throughout his day, see if you would feel the same if what happens to him, happened to you. Jesse is a powerful resource for parents and educators. Jesse True was created to help children learn that all feelings are OK and it's OK to feel. Jesse's "super power" is changing colors. We often associate colors with feelings, such as "feeling blue" or "red with anger." When Jesse feels something strongly, the energy he generates radiates a color that reflects his emotion. Jesse glows different colors based on different feelings. The message Jesse gives children is that emotions, whether good or bad, are both natural and healthy. Suppressing feelings can lead to long term mental and health problems, such as behavioral issues, anxiety, depression, physical illnesses, and more. Children need to feel comfortable and confident in what they feel, in how to share their feelings, and properly deal with them. With that kind of emotional maturity, children have confidence in themselves and in their identity, and go on to become healthy adults. Learning how to deal with feelings is critical for proper social and emotional development. Reason and consequence evolve as children grow, and they need guidance, encouragement, and support to help them navigate and develop their emotions. A color chart is provided at the end of this book. As you read about Jesse's experiences, encourage your child to identify and discuss their feelings to see if they would feel the same. Use Jesse's stories to open a dialogue with your child, so that they can say what they think or feel, in a safe place, with you as a confidant. FREE coloring pages are included in each story! Empower your child to take control of their experiences, and to enjoy their feelings.
