Ofqual has pledged that Year 10 and 12 pupils will not be "unfairly disadvantaged" if their 2021 GCSE and A-level performance is hit by the lessons they have missed this year. In new guidance, published today , the exams regulator says: "We know the Covid-19 outbreak will have caused stress and uncertainty for many students, regardless of whether or not they were due to take exams this year."

Coronavirus GCSEs: Year 10s 'won't be disadvantaged'

GCSE revision should ideally start in January. However, how soon/late revision begins depends on various factors including a child's specific abilities and how efficient their revision is. Ultimately, it's important a teenager has a certain level of autonomy to decide when this should begin. When do GCSE exams begin? The main exam period generally runs from around May the 14th to the 22nd of June in year 10 and 11. Check out the links above for exam timetables for different exam boards.
