In The Inclusive Society?: Social Exclusion and New Labour, Levitas introduced the idea of social exclusion as part of the new political language. She also introduced the concepts of MUD (the moral underclass discourse), SID (the social integration discourse), and RED (the redistribution discourse), as tools for analysing social exclusion.

Ruth Levitas - Wikipedia

When discussing social inclusion, its twin- social exclusion "necessarily arises. Social exclusion is the "restriction of access to opportunities and [a] limitation of the capabilities required to capitalise on these [opportunities]." We also know that there is a correlation between discrimination and social exclusion. Many exclusions stem from discrimination of individuals or groups on the grounds of their attributes, or social, economic or physical disadvantages.
